Dear Expectant Parents:

It is common to have many questions as you anticipate the birth of your baby and even more questions will arise after his or her birth. That's why it is so very important to have a genuine relationship with a pediatrician you can trust. We would like to thank you for scheduling a prenatal consultation with one of our providers, so that you can start getting your questions answered.

As you plan for your new baby, you may find the following website helpful in deciding on the very important purchase of your baby's safety seat: www.gahighwaysafety.org.

Also, we would like to make you aware that in the first few weeks after birth, establishing breastfeeding may require extra help and instruction. In addition to the usual newborn visits, we are happy to offer counseling for parents who are having difficulty. We offer lactation consultations appointments. During these appointments we can answer questions and give tips to help make your breastfeeding experience happy and successful. Please call the office to request an appointment if these services are needed.

You may find other helpful information including directions to all of our office locations on our website, www.pampapediatrics.com or by joining us on Facebook or Instagram to stay up on all the latest information from our practice.

Sincerely,

The Staff and Providers of PAMPA
